THE NEW LEGISLATURE.—The Columbia Phoenix gives the following as the status of the Legislature of the State, as to color: House of Representatives—Whites 44; colored 80. Senate—Whites 20; colored 12.

PRESENT ARMS.—A new fashion is announced in Paris. Ladies carry their parasols—some believe the technical name for the implement is an en-tout-cas—hit to their sides like a sword, which confers on them, especially if they wear hats and plumes, and high boots with high heels, a decidedly military appearance.

MISS MONTGOMERY.—Meetings of the voters of the lower wards will be held to-morrow night to nominate five delegates from each ward, who shall meet at a like number of delegates from each of the upper wards, and together nominate a candidate for Mayor. The places of meeting will be found in the advertisement, and it is hoped that there will be a large attendance.

UPPER WARDS CONSERVATIVE MEETING.—It will be given by a notice in another column, that a meeting of the Conservative voters of the upper wards will be held at the Washington Engine House this evening. It is hoped that there will be a large and influential attendance, as the upper wards design co-operating with the lower, and concert of action is thereby safeguarded for the people.

THE GERMAN RUSE TO AMERICA.—Private letters from the county of Sohanburg (Electoral Ruse), state that the emigration to this country is extraordinarily great this year, and that even many persons in easy circumstances are quitting their homes for the United States. The number of persons leaving, it is added, is more considerable than during the period from 1853 to 1854, when the uncertain situation of the country determined many of the inhabitants to abandon it. At present the excessive augmentation of the taxes appears to be the principal cause of this exodus.

A BOWING MATCH came off on Saturday afternoon, the contestants being the "Alcibi" and the "Lillie." Two fine row boats owned and manned by youths, whose business on the wharves has inspired fondness for aquatic sports. The distance to be rowed was from the James' Island buoy to the corner of the Battery—about one mile—and although both boats breasted the waters gallantly the Alcibi was declared the victor by a few lengths. The Alcibi was entered by Mr. Edwin Walker, and was rowed by the following crew: Henry Cheves, coxswain; Skroko—H. D. Elliott, R. Williams, W. Evans, R. Dehon. The Lillie was entered by Messrs. Neil Huguenin and G. B. Edwards, and was manned as follows: G. B. Edwards, coxswain; Skroko—D. Bull, Neil Huguenin, Thos. Lightsey, Alfred Heyward.

THE CATHOLIC FAIR.—Sixty Day.—The Opera on Saturday did not seem to affect the Catholic Fair, and, although there were not many new faces, persons enough were found to bleed and collapse once more. On Wednesday the Fair will certainly close, and all the wondrous things remaining undisposed of will then be raffled off. The last nights are sure to be brilliant, and the chances of winning a fortune for a quarter will be great enough to tempt mathematicians.

As already noticed, the Catholic female orphans were treated at the Fair on Friday, and on Saturday the male orphans were served with the same sauce. They were marched into the hall in grand style, and opened their eyes as wide as they afterwards opened their mouths. They were astonished, dazzled, and after they had waded their little frames with ice-cream and cake, were permitted to dive into the grab-bag, whose "dam unfathomable depths" contain many a gem of purest glass serene, not to mention pin cushions, dolls and baby shoes. The orphans were highly delighted. Bless their little hearts, they deserved it all.

The shooting gallery, Jacob's well, telegraph, wheel of fortune, ice cream, plate, turkey, infant's clothes, and the rest are still flourishing, and amongst the objects to be raffled to-night is the far-famed palpitating doll. No. 3. Soda is on the rampage, and it is proper to mention that the marble fountain was lent to the Fair by W. S. Corwin & Co., of King-street.

One of the principal features is a double revolving stereoscope to be raffled for table No. 19. The stereoscope is of large dimensions, and contains forty-eight painted views of Ireland. These views are got up in the best style of art, and embrace the most picturesque and interesting parts of the Emerald Isle.

The view of the "Irish Fern" is strikingly beautiful, and is alone worth ten times the cost of a "chance." The views on the Lakes of Killarney are perfect. Blarney Castle, on the top of which stands prominently the celebrated Blarney stone, which yields such sweet persuasive powers to its eager votaries, and has nearly been kissed by every lady in the Catholic Fair. Nothing is more charming than the County of Wicklow scenery; and in these views we have two beautiful specimens, that of Lough Don and the Devil's Glen. The whole is the generous gift of J. W. B., of New York.

The following is a list of the articles won on Saturday night:
A splendid cake, Rev. F. J. Shadler; fine gold pencil, Miss Clara Mathieson; a China cup, Miss Maria Barbot; one tidy, Rev. J. O. Schacht; one tidy, H. V. Angel; small toilet set, Eliza B. H. Baker; splendid cake, J. Archer; fine opera clock, Miss Angel; handsome medal, Miss Mota Black; bottle cherries, Miss Henry; bridal fan, Miss Mary Mcweeney; likeness of Pope Pius Ninth, J. O. Schacht; box sugar plums, Julian Barbot; worked sash, Ellen Murphy; a pair slippers, Miss Emma Manigault; China cup and saucer, John Donoghue; a sponge cake, E. E. Loffman; doll, E. T. West; China cup and saucer, J. O. Schacht; Bohemian toilet set, A. Tiefenthal; gold thimble, Miss Mollie Baker.

THE BRADFORD MURDER IN WALTERBORO'.—The full account of this most brutal and unprovoked murder of a defenceless man, committed in the presence of his wife, was published in THE NEWS at the time of its occurrence. Several of the members of the Fortieth colored infantry, the garrison at Walterboro', were then arrested, but there was no evidence sufficient to convict them and they were released. A portion of this regiment was subsequently discharged, and after they had left for their homes a colored man, named Lewis Mix, made an affidavit that induced the military authorities to issue warrants for the arrest of—German, Jas. Stevens and Ben Daniel, discharged members of the Fortieth. The two first were soon secured, but Daniel had left for his home in Ohio, and was only arrested upon a requisition made upon the Governor of Ohio, and signed by General Canby and Governor Orr. The prisoners were brought to this city and sent to Castle Pinckney for safe keeping, but Stevens, evidently through the connivance of his guard, succeeded in effecting his escape a few days since, and was re-arrested at Fort Moultrie. German has, since his arrest, turned State's evidence, and the other prisoners have been removed to the jail in this city, where they are closely confined. The trial will take place to-day before a military commission, to be held at the Citadel. The nature of the affidavit and German's evidence is not known, but if the prisoners are found guilty, it is to be hoped that they will receive the full punishment awarded by the law, as the circumstances show that the killing, by whomsoever done, was a most wanton and atrocious murder.

THE OPERA ON SATURDAY NIGHT.—The Parlor Opera Troupe, of which Miss McCulloch is "the bright particular star," performed on Saturday night Donizetti's "Don Pasquale" with complete success. Of course the hall was not convenient to either singers or audience, but it was packed with the "upper tier" of Charleston, who for the nonce were thoroughly and properly enthusiastic. Signor Boye as "Ernesto" sang with great sweetness. His voice is not powerful, but it is of good quality, and was used with delicacy and judgment. Signor Orlandini as "Malatesta" was very good. His voice is a rich melodic baritone, of great force and fine timbre. Signor Susini evidently has not been taught by experience to avoid the narrow line which divides buffoonery from comedy. His voice is too boisterous and shows a straining after effect, injurious, sometimes, to his companions on the stage, and at variance, frequently, with dramatic propriety. Signor Susini has a noble voice, and can fit the likes play "Don Pasquale" in such a manner as to leave but little to be desired. The concerted singing was admirably done, and the trio and quartette in the second act particularly worthy of praise.

Miss McCulloch, however, was the attraction of the evening, and she has received a welcome that must have proved to her that Charleston can value Southern talent. The great charm of her voice is its clear, warbling freshness, and the lack of "stiffness" in her manner cannot mar the grace and brilliancy of her singing. Miss McCulloch sang the famous cavatina in their first act with great effect, and was warmly cheered. Her singing throughout the opera was a triumph, and the bouquets increased in number and the applause increased in vehemence until the close of the third act, when Miss McCulloch was called before the footlights, and so pelted with flowers and praise that she was compelled to sing one of her favorite values. Our fair Carolina singer has written her name high in our esteem, and she must not be allowed to leave our city without having received some public evidence of the high appreciation that she has won.

MEMORIAL DAY.—The association of ladies who have undertaken the care of the graves of the Confederate dead had designated the 10th of May, the anniversary of Stonewall Jackson's death, as the occasion to deck the graves of the fallen with floral offerings. The tenth falling on Sunday, this solemn ceremony was performed last Saturday. Every arrangement had been made to secure a full attendance of those who honored the dead of the lost cause. Extra trains were run on both the South Carolina and the Northeastern Railroads, and before the hour appointed for the ceremony to commence, the little hedge enclosing the Confederate burial ground was surrounded by an attentive audience of about three thousand persons, a large proportion of whom were ladies. A number of carriages, wagons and private conveyances were also on the ground, and the occupants from these elevated positions obtained a good view of the impressive scene. In the centre of the burial ground a cross had been erected, which was draped with moss, and at one angle of the hedge there was a temporary stage crowned with a mossy arch, under which the venerable Dr. Bachman took his stand. The ceremonies were opened with prayer by the Rev. Dr. Bachman, after which an invocation hymn, composed for the occasion by the Rev. C. S. Vedder, was sung. The address of the association, assisted by their attendant cavaliers, then proceeded to lay their floral tributes on the graves. Every headstone was crowned with a wreath, some of them extremely beautiful, but the majority were tastefully formed of laurel and cedar, while the body of the graves were decorated with crosses, wreaths, bouquets, and other floral offerings. The tombs of other Confederate soldiers who were buried in private lots were also visited, and a tender care was lavished upon them. That of Captain Mitchell, the son of the distinguished Irish patriot, was beautifully adorned. This tomb is one of the principal points of interest in Magnolia, and was visited by a large number of persons. After the ceremony of decorating the graves had been concluded, the visitors walked slowly through the burial ground, and read the brief record which was placed on each headstone—the name of the soldier with his company and regiment. One row at the east end of the enclosure caused many to stop and gaze sadly at the simple word "unknown," which was the only inscription on the stone.

The return trip of the cars was fixed for half-past six o'clock, which allowed ample time for a stroll through the beautiful City of the Dead. The graves of Colonel Washington, and those of historical fame in the recent war, were severally visited, and many a silent tear was brushed away as the last resting-place of the Confederate dead was passed. The shrill whistle and the lengthening shadows reminded the crowd that it was time to turn their faces homeward, but it was with lingering steps that they left the hallowed spot. The cars were soon freighted, but notwithstanding the extra accommodations furnished by the two roads, it was found necessary to make a second trip before all of the visitors were borne back to the city.

In the different grave yards attached to the churches in the city the graves of the soldiers were not forgotten, for tender and loving hands had crowned them with laurel wreaths. Calhoun's grave, in St. Philip's Church yard, and that of Mr. Peter Manigault, in the Huguenot Church yard, an old veteran, who lost his life at the close of the war, were profusely decorated with flowers and wreaths. The day was bright, clear and beautiful, the air being pleasantly cool and refreshing.

COURT OF EQUITY.—There was no session of this court on Saturday.

Arguments were delivered by Messrs. Young, Simons and McKell for the defence, and the Attorney-General for the State. The trial continued the greater portion of the day, and the case was not given to the jury until near 8 o'clock. After a short absence, they returned with a verdict of "Guilty of manslaughter" as to Chisolm, and "Not guilty" as to Lopez.

The District Attorney delivered an argument for the government, and, after a full, clear and comprehensive charge from the Judge, the jury returned a verdict for the United States of eleven hundred dollars, with interest and costs. The suit was for fourteen thousand dollars, and the District Attorney gave notice of an appeal to the Supreme Court at Washington.

TESTIMONIAL TO MISS MCCULLOCH.—Miss McCulloch has many claims upon our consideration and regard. She is a Carolina lady, an artist of uncommon promise, and a candidate who may be expected in after years to make famous the name of her native State. Miss McCulloch has taken Charleston by storm. What General Gilmore and all his angels could not do in three hundred days, Miss McCulloch has done in a few hours. The city is at her feet, and rather like the position. To-morrow this "Mocking Bird of South Carolina" is to leave us, and it will only meet the wishes of hundreds of our citizens if she is persuaded to remain until Wednesday, and accept to-morrow night a grand complimentary concert, which shall show the measure of our esteem. We can give Miss McCulloch a bumper concert, and it is hoped that the proposition will be carried out without the delay of an hour.

LAUNCH OF THE YACHT "ELLA ANNA."—This event, which has been looked forward to with eagerness by a large circle of juvenile cavaliers and young misses, came off on Saturday morning at South Dry Dock wharf, at half-past nine o'clock, in the presence of a large concourse of spectators, who, fresh and rosy as a May morning, greeted the occasion by their attendance. Every preparation for the launch had been completed previously, and as the swelling tide reached its highest point, a goodly portion of the little folk claimed the privilege of participating in the launch by taking seats aboard. The hour of high water having arrived, gay hunting was unfurled; the ensign was displayed from the stern; the burgee, with white field and scarlet letters showing the name of "Ella Anna" at the masthead; the pendant, white, red and blue, of wonderful length; the signal flag forward, white field and scarlet letter "M," now floated brightly on the morning breeze, and, at a given signal, the fastenings were cast off, and while the beautiful little ship slid slowly but gracefully into the water, the interesting ceremony of christening was performed by the usual breakage of a bottle of wine over her bows, and the "Ella Anna" was afloat. It is needless to say that the launch was successful, that the greatest ecstacy attached to all the little folks who had ventured aboard, and that they were evicted exceedingly by the more timid who had staid ashore. The "Ella Anna" was hailed to a convenient point at the wharf and the happy "voyagers" were assisted on shore, where the young lady who lent her name to the boat presented Miss Marsh with a fine bouquet. The whole party with joyful steps then proceeded to a neighboring office, where a spread of good things was in waiting, prepared by the veritable Tully himself. After proper attention to creams, cakes, tarts and lemonade, the company retired, no doubt wishing for just such a nice little frolic every Saturday in the year. It was in all respects a well appointed and most pleasant affair.

As our miniature fleet for the summer season of boating and fishing is increasing in numbers, we have obtained from the shipwrights, Messrs. J. G. & D. C. Marsh, the following particulars of this fine little vessel: Length over all, 41 feet; length on keel, 35 feet 11 inches; beam, 11 feet 3 inches; depth of hold, 4 feet 6 inches; mast, 46 feet; topmast, 20 feet; boom, 30 feet; gaff, 16 feet; bowsprit (out board), 10 feet; centre board, 9 feet; tonnage, 7½ tons; draught—4½ inches; forward, 2½ inches.

The noticeable feature of the "Ella Anna" are these: her lines, which are convex, are more forward than has heretofore been usual, which gives her a sharp appearance about the bow, while the bearings have been developed further aft. Her mast seems tall and her boom and gaff indicate a spread of canvas that will make her a formidable competitor of any craft of her tonnage and size.

We noticed that some portion of her rigging is of wire. This work is now going forward at the Union wharf dock, and those who take an interest in yachts and such matters can see her there. We congratulate the owners on their new acquisition, and hope to hear of more yacht-building. With our fine harbor any quantity of sport is available here at home every summer.

THE FAIR OF THE PLYMOUTH CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH (COLORED), which has been held at the hall in Meeting-street, opposite Pinckney, will continue open for three nights longer. The decorations and arrangement of the tables are alone sufficient to attract visitors, but the managers have also provided music, and the inspiring strains induce many to enter and deposit their greenbacks.
